PROJECT MANAGER SWISSCONTACT

Project Manager for the Fostering Employment and Growth Opportunities (FEGO) project. FEGO is a four-year project, with 3.4 million EUR budget, financed by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (Sida) and implemented by Swisscontact in Kosovo that aspires to bring lasting structural changes in the market system for the furniture, apparel and rural tourism sectors. With an overall objective in job creation and income generation, FEGO aims to generate income, employment and self-employment opportunities through promoting sustainable market changes and different project interventions offering the chance to economically and socially disadvantaged people to improve their lives on their own initiative.

My role as a Project manager is to lead the project team of 10 members strategically and in an adaptive way towards the most effective implementation, guaranteeing the MSD approach and the reaching of agreed results. To plan and report to the donor and other stakeholders and to ensure the necessary support systems (Monitoring and Results Measurement, Knowledge Management and communications) are in place to prove, improve and adapt implementation in a transparent way. Furthermore, my role involves managing and coordinating the HR team (including recruitment and evaluation) and quality control and decision-making on interventions. Responsible also to maintain the external communication with main stakeholders and stimulates coordination of the team with other projects to reach synergy and maximum impact as well as to ensure sound financial and administrative management of the project.

MONITORING AND RESULTS MEASUREMENT SPECIALIST SWISSCONTACT

Main functions and responsibilities are to coordinate and guide the implementation of monitoring and impact assessment within the Promoting Private Sector Employment (PPSE) program and ensure the quality and alignment with the Swisscontact internal standard and the DCED standard, thus responding to external accountability and internal management needs. Supervising proper implementation of the monitoring and results measurement activities by the sector teams, as well as regular development of the PPSE monitoring system. To validate the monitoring and results management system, the PPSE project underwent an audit by DCED certified auditors in early 2020, achieving a remarkable result of 97% in complying with the DCED standard.

Responsible also for capacity building of the sector teams and support in analysis in selected sectors and areas, design of strategies, intervention and plan of activities, in assessing impact and conducting field and desk research. Aggregating data and reporting to the Project Manager and the donor is also part of the main responsibilities.

Furthermore, a core role within the project is to backstop and support the team in implementation, with emphasis on the Market Systems Development (MSD) methodology. Experience with the MSD methodology for over eight years at PPSE and beyond, in sectors such as tourism, food processing, waste management, etc. as well as a part of a core worldwide Swisscontact group in developing a unique practical implementation methodology that has roots within MSD.

Milestone achievement was the development and presentation of a unique methodology developed specifically for the purpose of measuring the impact of PPSE interventions with regards to employment for the tourism sector. The 'Tourism Employment Proxy and Multiplier' represents a practical methodology for calculation of employment in tourism and was presented at the Global Seminar (organized by the DCED and BEAM Exchange in Nairobi) regarding themes of results measurement (particularly around the DCED Standard), and market systems development in cities.

● EDUCATION AND TRAINING

PHD CANDIDATE Charles University

This PhD research intends to contribute to the literature through examining the economic performance of dollarised small emerging economies. The work will consist of three related topics on evaluating the impact of dollarisation on small emerging economies. Specifically, the following studies will be conducted: (1) Examine the performance of fully dollarised economies on real economy (output growth, investment levels, trade and net exports' growth); (2) Examine the performance of dollarised economies on financial indicators (inflation, credit growth, asset prices, reserve requirements); and (3) Meta-Regression analysis on dollarisation impact on GDP growth. The selected studies will be enriched by comparing the impact of dollarisation before and after the global financial crisis of 2008 as well as the COVID-19 pandemic crisis. The latter might provide important insights with regards to financing availability, in absence of monetary policy, of small emerging economies as a response mechanism towards crisis. Furthermore, comparative study on the economic performance between different exchange rate mechanisms, namely fully dollarised, partially dollarised and floating and fixed exchange rate regimes will be conducted. Timing of this research allows to observe a lengthier period of dollarisation experience compared to many available studies on the topic. Specifically, this PhD intends to study the economic performance of dollarised economies for over 20 years, starting from the year 2000, which should provide unbiased results, offsetting potential short-term economic fluctuations. To address the hypothesis in this research, panel and time series data will be utilised, using secondary data sources, primarily on the World Bank database, IMF, and other sources, such as domestic central banks' databases.
